you belong here

We may not look like it, but we just belong together.

Dr Doolittle

When our need to belong in a team is met, our energy and focus pour into the team's shared mission. We can lock into our role and the tasks we're being asked to deliver. We are comfortable being vulnerable in our quest to get better. We feel secure enough to help others and point out where we could be better as a team.

We can be ourselves. We feel that we are respected and that we matter. We feel included. We can be a good teammate here. Our own identity and that of the team happily coexist.

We are tuned into the legacy we're about to write.
